BACK ON THE JOB LEGISLATORS COME TO THE CAPITAL CITY

SOLONS AGAIN IN THEIR SEATS

Last Session of Sixty-Second Congress Convened at Noon.

IMPORTANT MEASURES ON TAP

Both Houses Adjourn Out of Respect For Members Who Have Died Since Last Adjournment—Ways and Means Committee to Hold Tariff Hearings—Thousands of Visitors at the Capital.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The last session of the Sixty-second congress convened at noon today. Practically a full representation was present in both houses.

Charles G. Bennett, secretary of the senate, called that body to order. He will preside until a president of the senate is chosen. Speaker Champ Clark presided over the house.

Both houses adjourned almost immediately after being called to order out of respect for the memory of members who had died since the last adjournment.

In addition to the senators and representatives, there is an unusually large number of outsiders who have been drawn to Washington at this time for one reason or another. Many Democrats have come on to interview senators and representatives about office under the new administration. A considerable representation from commercial bodies and industrial enterprises is here to inquire about the tariff.

The announcement by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee that hearings will begin immediately after the holidays was a signal to all the industrial interests and to importers to hurry to Washington and make their plans to be heard.

Presidential Messages.

The Archbald case, an impeachment trial which involves Judge Robert W. Archbald of the United States commerce court, is on the calendar for Tuesday. President Taft's first message, dealing with foreign relations, will go to congress tomorrow. His second message, dealing with general subjects, will be submitted Friday, according to present information.

The supreme court divides interest with the two houses of congress. The court met at noon after two weeks' vacation, and there is a general expectation that some of the opinions in important trust cases which have been long deferred will soon be read.

Members of the house are giving most of their attention to the preparation of the general appropriation bills. There is a general sentiment expressed by senators and representatives that the session will probably transact very little important business outside of the general appropriation bills. The ways and means committee of the house will be busy with tariff hearings, and it is not unlikely that the Democratic members of the finance committee of the senate will be in daily touch with these hearings, believing that in this way tariff legislation may be expedited after it has been submitted to the extra session.

Important Measures Up.

One of the most important bills before the house is the employers' liability and workmen's compensation act, which was passed by the senate at the last session and is now before a committee of the house. Representatives of the railway brotherhoods are all working to bring about the passage of the act.

Next to the compensation bill, the chief interest is in the Works resolution that is unfinished business of the senate, which proposes an amendment to the federal constitution limiting the tenure of the presidential office to a single term of six years. Undoubtedly there will be an effort made to pass this resolution, either in its present form or amended.

A reopening of the fight to reduce the tax on colored oleomargarine is set for this week in the house. Representative Lever of South Carolina,

ARMED FORCES REST ON GUNS PEACE IS NEAR

TOMORROW SEES PROTOCOL SIGNED

Envoys of Turkey and the Allies Reach An Agreement.

TURKS TO KEEP ADRIANOPLE

Allies On the Other Hand Will Demand a War Indemnity of $240,000,000 and the Town of Salonica—Garrisons at Adrianople and Scutari To Be Revictualled Daily by the Balkan States.

Constantinople, Dec. 2.—The signing of the protocol for an armistice between Turkey and the Balkan allies will take place tomorrow at the neutral town of Baghchetsch.

Though so far the exact terms of the preliminary peace agreement have been kept secret, it is pretty well known what they are. Turkey keeps Adrianople, but loses Salonica. She may also keep Dedeagatch, on the Aegean, and consequently the control of the Adrianople-Dedeagatch railroad.

The allies, according to a Sofia dispatch, will demand that Turkey pay a war indemnity of $240,000,000. The armistice stipulates that the garrisons of Adrianople and Scutari shall receive daily rations sufficient for each day during the cessation of hostilities. The news that the Adrianople garrison came as a surprise, and the concession by the Bulgars is taken to mean that they genuinely desire to arrange a lasting peace as quickly as possible.

The plenipotentiaries at Baghchetsch have all during their long conference impressed upon one another the fact that it will be to the loss of both sides if the powers step in as mediators now.

Speedway Is Given A Baptism Of Death

Two Motorcyclists Killed In a Head-on Collision.

Piqua, O., Dec. 2.—Its baptism of death was received by the new Piqua and Troy speedway when Homer Whitlock, 18, and Ora Wilhelm, 23, were killed in a head-on motorcycle collision. Many motorcycles and automobiles were on the track.

A mile below town Whitlock attempted to pass the automobile of W. H. McClusky of Sidney. Approaching it in the opposite direction, Wilhelm also tried to pass it. Their machines came together in a tremendous impact. The necks of both were broken. Whitlock's left leg was also fractured. Both were badly cut and bruised. Their machines were wrecked.

Photos by American Press Association.

INTRODUCING, if you please, Miss Liberty of the U. S. A. in general and New York harbor in particular. Consider yourself for a moment held aloft close in front of her by Father Neptune, ruler of the seas, risen from the waters to perform this pleasant task. See how the faithful young woman is scarred and seamed, her face lined with care, as she stands there the dominant sentinel and symbol of American freedom and liberty. Now bid her a warm adieu as Neptune turns you over to the nearest airship, from which at long range you see Miss Liberty on her little island, a guiding beacon and an inspiring hope for all on land and sea.

BIG ENGINE LETS GO NEAR HAMILTON, OHIO

Engineer of Lima Killed and Fireman of Van Wert Mangled.

Hamilton, O., Dec. 2.—Two minutes after a passenger train had passed, southbound, a giant engine pulling a heavy freight train exploded on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railway at Stockton, blowing the engineer to atoms and seriously injuring the fireman.

The engineer was William McDonald of Lima, O., and the fireman Edward Hawley of Van Wert, O. The accident occurred four miles south of Hamilton. Two engines were attached to the freight. The second engine blew up, and the explosion was so violent that the heavy portions of the great machine were thrown hundreds of yards on either side of the track. Twelve cars were derailed and piled up on the tracks. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

Boy Makes Awful Find

Boy's Terrible Discovery.

West Orange, N. J., Dec. 2.—When David Ilgin went out to the barn to call his father, Benjamin Ilgin, to dinner, he found Ilgin hanging from a rafter by a halter and rope and still struggling. The boy called his mother and then went for a policeman. Before either reached the barn Ilgin had ceased to struggle. When the body was cut down it was still warm. Ilgin was 46 years old.

WILL BE BASIS OF CIVIC WORK

SOCIAL CREED TO BE ADOPTED

Intended to Be Basis of Civic Work of Churches.

AID OF OUTSIDE BODIES ASKED

Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, Representing Thirty-two Denominations, Meets in Chicago This Week—Will Review Federation Work on a Nation-Wide Scale—Protection of Family a Feature.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The federal council of the Churches of Christ in America, representing 32 denominations, will meet in Chicago Dec. 4 to 9, inclusive, to hold its first convention to review federation work on a nationwide scale. More than 17,000,000 church members are represented by the delegates.

Formal adoption of a new social creed, which is to be the social work standard of all the churches belonging to the federation, is to be one of the most important acts of the conference. The adoption of a common religious creed is forbidden by the constitution of the federal council. The social creed is intended to be the basis of civic work of the churches, furtherance of which is a leading purpose of the council. New features are as follows:

"The church must stand for the protection of the family by the single standard of purity, regulation of marriage and proper housing.

"For fuller development of the child by education and recreation.

"For the abatement and prevention of poverty.

"For the conservation of health.

"For safeguarding the right of all men to an opportunity for self-maintenance and for protection of workers from the hardship of enforced unemployment."

Members of commercial associations, business men, labor unions and civic bodies are urged to adopt the social creed or incorporate its provisions into their programs.

Another Plan To Reduce High Priced Food Stuffs

City Markets Will Be Established Soon in New York.

New York, Dec. 2.—The establishment of city markets at which food products shall be sold by auction to retailers and consumers is the remedy for the high cost of living proposed by Horace Bruce, head of the Columbia university inquiry into the subject.

He told members of the Brooklyn Philosophical association at the Long Island Business college that this was the best means of cutting down unnecessary costs in distribution, as it would do away with the jobbers.

Legislation calling for the establishment of city markets in New York will be introduced at the next session of the legislature, and Mr. Bruce asked support for the bills.

WORTHLESS CHECKS LAND HOOSIER CROOK IN TOILS OF THE LAW

Local Merchants Defrauded By Young Man With Mania for Passing Bad Checks.

HAS PRISON RECORD
WITH MORE TO FOLLOW

W. L. Murdock, of South Bend,
Indiana, Arrested at B. & O.
Depot Saturday Night Now Faces Charge Which Bids Fair to Land Him in Penitentiary.

W. L. Murdock, alias Byron L. Murdock, of South Bend, Ind., who dropped into this city about the middle of last week, was arrested at the B. & O. depot at 11:06 Saturday night, upon a charge of passing worthless checks on a number of Washington merchants, and is now confined in the county jail awaiting trial.

Murdock, who is 21 years of age, and whose father is a respectable merchant-tailor in South Bend, Ind., got busy soon after arriving here, and first showed a $20 check, which, to all appearances was signed by his father. He tried to get the check cashed and failed, after which he destroyed it.

Later he appeared at W. A. Tharp's where a $15 check was tendered in payment for some small purchases. Going to H. C. Anthony's shop he gave a $25 check in payment for a hat and other articles, receiving the difference in cash.

Not content with the two bad checks, which he signed and which were drawn on the First National bank of South Bend, Ind., being written on Midland National bank checks of this city, he went to George Gregg's shoe store and tendered an employe another $15 check in payment for shoes, receiving the difference in change.

At the latter place inquiry developed that the fellow was evidently working a flim-flam game by tendering bad checks, and a search was immediately instituted for him, and he was forced to return the money. Murdock admitted to Chief McCoy that the checks were worthless.

The young man evidently has a mania for passing bad checks, according to information from South Bend, where the chief of police says the fellow has a prison record, and that at one time he was arrested in Chicago for passing a worthless check for $100.

It was also learned that he had been in prison in Jeffersonville, Ind., and that he had not been out of the prison at that place but a short time.

In a letter written to his father, young Murdock informed his parent that he was in trouble and added, "You know where I was last Christmas, and how near I am there again."

Part of the money secured on the bad checks was returned to Messrs. Tharp and Anthony.

OLD AT 40.

Some Younger at 65 Than Others Are at 40 Years.

So many people whom you meet about the time they reach 40 begin by saying "I can't do this, and I can't do that, because I'm getting old now," they begin to act old, feel old and they are older in appearance than many who are much more advanced in years.

When you begin to feel old, when your energy begins to fail build yourself up with our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It is a wonderful blood-maker and strengthener.

Mr. J. N. Kelley, aged 75, who lives at Lake Charles, La., says: "I took Vinol for a run-down condition, it not only built up my strength, but I feel fifteen years younger than I did before taking it."

Thousands of old people have found in Vinol just the medicine they need to build up the feeble, weakened system and create strength. If it fails, we return your money. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington C. H., Ohio.

Elks' Memorial Services Sunday Effectively Observed

The Elks Memorial services for 1912 were observed with fitting program in the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon. The splendid program which had been arranged for the occasion was carried out in impressive manner. A good representation of lodge members were present as well as a splendid audience.

Mrs. B. F. Davis at the pipe organ, Mrs. Arthur Burgett, Mrs. Wert Shoop, soloists, and Mr. Kneisley, violinist, gave to the musical part of the program that charm and effectiveness which only these well known artists can give. Rev. W. I. Campbell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivered the invocation and the benediction in words and manner which contributed greatly to the spirit of the occasion.

The address was delivered by W. S. Hoy, of Wellston Lodge No. 726, and was one of the ablest and best delivered addresses which Washington Lodge No. 129 and Washington people have ever had the opportunity to hear.

The custom of remembering the dead in reverend affection, the speaker said, was as old as the sentiment of love and the conception of the beautiful. The custom a creditable one to the nation was but the reflex of the story of the centuries harking back to the shadows before Greece and Rome were nations.

The splendid address abounded in beautifully expressed thoughts and beliefs for the future, Christian duty and Christian faith. One word picture followed another, in rapid order, framed in splendid rhetoric delivered with strength and force which proved the deep conviction of the speaker and carried that conviction to his hearers.

The creed of the lodge which the speaker expressed in two words, "Do Good" was dwelt upon at some length and denominated the creed of love and love in turn defined as the major chord in the universal harmony of earth and heaven, the trustee for the widowed and the fatherless.

The speaker closed his address with these words:

"The soul yearns upward; it feels affinity with the infinite, but it beats its wings against an impenetrable barrier until a guiding hand has let it home; and then no whisper breathes to us from those cold lips of clay.

"No answer comes to our cry of despair.

"Tears and flowers, flowers and tears, sobbing, bells and anguished moans it is the way of Nature; but though we mourn let us hope and believe in a little while these poor earth flowers which we place about our altars for remembrance, are faded and dead; in a little while our tears are dried. But memory lives. Then let us not be sad, but smile, and so LOVE and FAITH shall show us a horizon filled with welcoming, beckoning hands."

CROUPY COUGHS AND WHEEZY COLDS.

The quickest simplest way to rid the children of dangerous croupy coughs and wheezy stuffy colds is to give them Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It gives almost instant relief and stops a cough promptly. It soothes and heals. Contains no opiates. H. L. Blomquist, Esdalle, Wis., says: "My wife considers Foley's Honey and Tar Compound the best cough cure and it gives the best results." Blackmer & Tanquary.

Like Some Other Epitaphs.
"I was called in by a close-fisted old merchant the other day," a Boston lawyer remarked, smiling. "He wanted me to draw his will, and this I proceeded to do, following his verbal instruction. Presently he said:
"To each and every clerk who has been in my employ for ten years I give $10,000."

"This seemed like a considerable sum to me, and I ventured a slight protest, as he had a number of daughters and his entire fortune was not large.

"Oh, that's all right," he said, with a little crooked smile. "You know people have always said that I was close and hard, and I want them to think well of me when I'm gone."
"I was a little touched and said something, but he waved it aside and we continued with the draft. When it was finished and as I was about to leave the office, the old fellow smiled again his little crooked smile.

"About those $10,000 legacies," he said, "there isn't a clerk in my place who has been with me over two years but it will look well in the papers!"

The Parthenon and Pantheon are far from being in the same class. The first is the finest building in the world, unapproached and, probably, unapproachable in its simple yet superlative excellence; the second is, apart from its dome, by no means wonderful. Everybody going to Rome sees the Pantheon, of course; but thousands go to Athens from the ends of the earth for the sole purpose of seeing the Parthenon, the "finest building on the finest site in the world." Even in its ruins it appeals to the mind of man as no other creation of art does, and the world would doubtless consider it a sacrilege to have any other rival near the throne.

A RAID.

The local police under the direct personal command of the chief made a raid on an even half dozen places where it was supposed gambling was permitted.

The raid resulted in the arrest of six men who were hauled to police court to answer to the charge of gambling. The six men were all arrested in one place, and in five of the six places which were raided nothing more formidable than atmosphere was encountered.

Therefore, in five places in the city to which suspicion, strong enough to spur the police to action, attached may still be classified as in doubt. In these five places no evidence sufficient to convict was uncovered, although the atmosphere of the places was not charged with innocence in such quantities as to clear them either in the minds of the police or in the public mind of suspicion.

The raid proves that the police are at least capable of affirmative action and goes a long way toward convincing the public that the present administration is sincere in its declaration that gambling in Washington will not be tolerated.

Gambling is a form of vice which is out of style in all up-to-date communities. The bell has rung for the gambler and the gambling joints in almost every city and town east of the Mississippi river.

Indeed, far into the west, the southwest and the northwest, with the passing of the "wild and woolly" regions and the coming of civilization, gambling is a vice which is considered very much of the early day variety.

Any city which permits gambling in these days is not only considered wrong morally, but decidedly out of style.

It is to be hoped that the raids of Saturday will be followed up whenever and wherever the finger of suspicion points; that the rule which Mayor Hunt laid down at Cincinnati when he demanded the resignation of Chief Millikan may be adopted and enforced in Washington.

Mayor Hunt told Chief Millikan that it was not only his duty to know of no gambling but that he must know there was no gambling.

If there is no gambling going on in Washington that fact can be very easily established to the satisfaction of the public and the talk of the gossips effectually hushed by a conscientious intelligent and determined following up of Saturday night's raids.

Proof that there is no gambling in Washington can be very easily furnished to the people by the police, if they care to go to that trouble.

CONGRESS MEETS.

The Congress of the nation meets today in the last session of the Sixty-second congress.

Not a great deal of general interest attaches to this session because it is not likely that any really new business, looking to the fixing of the policy of the national government regarding any of the great questions of the day, will be taken up.

Tariff tinkering will be left wholly for the new Congress which President-elect Wilson has announced he will convene in extraordinary session soon after his inauguration next March.

It is, of course, more fitting and in addition to that is a law, established by custom long followed, to allow the incoming administration to take up all new business involving a change of policy.

While the lower house of Congress is of the same political faith as President Wilson and while the leaders of the lower house are now and have been in the forefront of the campaigns of the past urging the adoption of just such legislation as the incoming president insists he will advocate in his first message, yet no legislation, along those lines, in advance of the inauguration of President Wilson will be enacted or even suggested.

The present session of the old Congress will confine its labors to closing up that which has already been begun and enacting such legislation as the pressing needs of the government requires.

President Taft's message may not be expected to outline any new governmental policy on any of the great issues of the day, but will, like the session of Congress be directed entirely to that only which cannot be allowed to await action of the new Congress.

For these reasons there is not that degree of interest centering around the present session which usually obtains.

Aviation Chances Seem Most Hopeless

By Jennie Adamson, Cicero, Ill.

Of all the experiments the world has ever known, it strikes me very forcibly that aviation is the most preposterous and its chances for success the most hopeless. The other day at the Clearing aviation field another life was sacrificed, thereby adding one more name to the long list of those that have been killed.

Some persist in believing that the end for which they are striving will be accomplished. But are not the odds too great against them and the loss of such brave and fearless men a loss to the world in general?

When one realizes the anxiety and sorrow caused in each individual case, it seems that some action ought to be taken to prevent such legalized form of suicide, even though, for reasons unknown to the vast number of doubters, aviation be all that can be wished for.

I dare say that humanity will never suffer for the need of it. The world will progress without it till the end of time.

Poetry For Today

WHEN I GO HOME.

When I go home it will be evening,
And I shall hear my own dear people sing;
And see the lighted rooms, and take my place
As one of them, in that sweet time of grace.

When I go home I shall be very tired Of struggling for the things that I desire;
But I shall be content to end my quest Gaining the best things—peace and love and rest.

When I go home how sorry I shall be
Not to have brought more treasures back with me!
Yet, though I be a failure, worn and poor,
They will not turn me from my Father's door.

When I go home I shall be travel-stained,
For winds have beaten me, and storms have rained,
And earth has clung to me by vale
and hill,
But they will take me in and love me still.

When I go home—Oh, will it not be Heaven
To be restored, accepted, loved, forgiven?
Sorrow and sighing are for those who roam;
I shall have found my bliss when I go home.

—Marianne Farmingham.

ODD INVENTIONS
GET PATENTEDThe Self-Tipping Hat and the Eyeglasses for Chickens with Poor Eyesight

ALSO A MECHANICAL GOAT

Then There's a Tornado-Proof House, Highly Recommended to Kansans—Its Head Always to the Wind—Some Strange Schemes.

"Labor-saving devices are always in demand; the thousands of inventors of this country are all devoting 90 per cent. of their time to producing such things, each in the hope of winning for himself fame and fortune, cash and credit," said a patent attorney the other day.

"One of the strangest of these schemes to lighten the world's work is a patent recently obtained by an ingenious person in Des Moines, Iowa.
It is called the self-tipping hat, and is designed to save the popular person from the fatiguing labor of removing his hat every time he meets one of the fair sex with whom he is acquainted.

"Much valuable energy is utilized in tipping the hat repeatedly," says the inventor, "and my device will relieve one of it and at once cause the hat to be lifted from the head in a natural manner." It is a novel device, in other words, "for effecting polite salutations by the elevation and rotation of the hat on the head of the saluting party, when said person bows to the person saluted, the actuation of the hat being produced by mechanism within it, and without the use of the hands in any manner."

"No truly rural person ever could have been responsible for the invention of eyeglasses for chickens, which was protected by United States patents recently. The glasses are modeled much after the fashion of grandpa's 'specs,' the nose rest being enlarged to go over the chicken's head, while the ear hooks are joined in the back.

"No claim is made that the chicken's eyesight is poor, or that magnififiers ever are needed that it may be better discover the reluctant worm or the elusive bug, but the inventor does say that the glasses 'are designed to prevent chickens pecking out each other's eyes.' The inventor's attempt to enforce all chickens to wear the device by legislative action in Kansas did not succeed, I may say.

"Members of secret societies, who sometimes may be put to much trouble to secure a sufficiently irascible goat, for the purpose of initiating new members to their respective lodges, will be glad to learn that the inventive genius of America has come to their assistance. The device is a mechanical goat, which can be put in the closet when not needed; that requires no feeding, and practically no care.
Also it may be handled by its keeper without fear of consequences. This mechanical goat is mounted on a tripod which runs on three wheels, the front one being loosely pivoted. A handle in the rear is for the purpose of pushing it.

"The candidate, blindfolded, is led to the side of the animal, and on it he takes his seat, placing his feet in stirrups on either side. As the goat is pushed about the lodge room a series of wheels and rods, geared to the wheels on which it runs, causes the animal to buck and rear in a fearful manner, keeping the candidate in continual danger of being shaken off.

"Residents of Kansas and other States in the cyclone belt, who are forced to retire frequently to cyclone cellars, and then organize searching parties to find their home when the storm has passed, will be pleased with the invention of a tornado-proof house.
This is built in the shape of a submarine, or a dirigible balloon, which is designed to keep the other pointing in the direction of the wind, the house being mounted on a pivot at its center, and turns freely on a circular track.

"Tails are common enough on windmills and weather vanes, but here is probably the first time that the idea has been adapted to residences. The wind-breaking end of the house, the inventor says, is reinforced and windowless, and the door opens on a flight of steps, wheeled at the bottom, which follow a circular path that tenants may always have a place upon which to descend. The inventor says his idea is particularly applicable to hospitals, and that by anchoring it it can be arranged to permit of continuous sunlight."

His Hospitable Instinct.

A farmer was asked to assist at the funeral of his neighbor's third wife, and, as he had attended the funeral of the two others, his wife was surprised when he declined the invitation. On being pressed to give his reason he said, with some hesitation: "You see, Mirandy, it makes a chap feel a bit awkward to be always accepting other folk's civilities when he never has anything of the same sort of his own to ask them back to."

The Married Voice.

A dramatic critic has been saying that our most accomplished players cannot reproduce on the stage the "married voice." Even when they are married. There is a peculiar domestic note—used at home—which cannot get over the footlights and was never meant for publicity.

Cox to Speak at Banquet.

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—The last pub-

Boys Confess Arson.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 2.—An investigation by fire wardens of a recent series of small fires in homes and stores in the "triangle" resulted in the capture and confession of Charles

Half a dozen other boys of the same gang are implicated.

Patient Strangles Himself.

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—Strangled to death with a towel twisted about his neck, George Osborn, Jr., 30, a patient at the Columbus state hospital, was found in one of the bathrooms of the institution by a nurse and two male attendants. Osborn's home was in Columbus.

Explosion Kills Five.

Hamilton, O., Dec. 2.—Five men are the collision.

Found With Hole in Head.

St. Clairsville, O., Dec. 2.—Frank Culos, 36, was found dead in four in his head caused suspicion of foul play and officers are investigating.

Five Passengers Injured In a Connecticut Collision.

Willamantic, Conn., Dec. 2.—A passenger train for New Haven on the new airline division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford smashed into a light engine in the yards at Columbia, a short distance east of here. Five persons were injured, including Miss Emily Pierson, the wealthy suffrage organizer of Cromwell, Conn. Both of the engines were smashed to junk, but none of the coaches left the track and the passengers were injured by being thrown between the seats. A roundhouse hostler ran the light engine out on the main tracks just in time to get in the way of the passenger train.

CO-OPERATIVE STORE FOR ARMY AND NAVY.

Washington, Dec. 2.—A co-operative store for the members of the army, navy, marine corps, national guard and revenue cutter service was opened in this city today. Already 1,000 subscribers have been obtained to the effort to reduce the high cost of living. The establishment is the third of the kind to be opened in the United States for members of the services named. At first only uniforms, furnishings and equipment will be sold, but it is planned to deal eventually in all sorts of goods.

Hickey Suspected of Other Crimes.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Suspicion that J. Frank Hickey, under arrest here for the murder of seven-year-old Joseph Josephs at Lackawanna, is responsible for the disappearance or death of children in other cities, is shown daily in inquiries received at police headquarters. He maintains that the deaths of the Josephs child, the Kruck child in New York and of Edward Morey at Lowell, Mass., are all that can be charged up to him.

Needle Drawn From Leg.

Findlay, O., Dec. 2.—Mrs. Ola Shaw of Columbus Grove has just been relieved of a needle that she is supposed to have swallowed years ago. Her leg swelling to unusual dimensions, she went to a hospital, where she took treatment. Returning home she was advised to poultice a sore spot on her leg. She did so, and a few days thereafter a needle an inch and a half long was drawn from the calf of the leg.

Chinese Suffragette Casting Her Vote In San Francisco

CHINESE women born in California were allowed to vote at the recent presidential election, and hundreds of them took advantage of the right of suffrage. In San Francisco, where the Chinese population runs into the thousands, many of these Chinese suffragettes flocked to the polls and cast their ballots in the manner shown in the illustration. This was taken in a Chinatown polling place where the election officers were Chinese. This particular suffragette voted for Roosevelt.

A NOVEL GAME.

Counters Placed on Spinning Top Throw It Into Divisions.

A game that is vastly more complicated than appears at first glance is that designed by a Connecticut man and depicted in the illustration. A board is divided into a number of compartments, some marked with plus and other with minus numbers. A top with a broad, flat head and a stem high above it is spun on the board and counters of different numbers and with perforations of different diameters are thrown over the stem of the top. The course of the latter is affected by these counters according to the diameter of the perforations. If a counter marked 10, for instance, is thrown on the top and the latter falls into the compartment marked "Add 25," 35 is added to the player's score. If the top stops in the compartment marked "Back 25," the player goes back 25 points. While the element of luck is prominent in this game, a great deal may depend on the wisdom shown in the use of counters which may deflect or stop the top's course.

Preparing for Cultivation in Florida. The annual burning over of Florida is very startling to newcomers. Early in January we saw to the west of us a huge fire, sweeping under the pine trees and flaming up to and among the limbs. It was a terrifying sight, to which, however, we soon became accustomed. We found that there were fire lines about houses and orchards, made by plowing a dozen furrows, and, with the people always alert, nobody was in serious danger.

You may expect to see these flames in any direction any time before the end of February. By that time nearly everything outside the fire lines has been burned over. The pine trees you might expect would easily catch fire, but they do not—unless tapped or wounded; and tapped trees are always hoed about. So back into the universal ether goes all that vast mass of stuff that Nature has woven of the air to add to the riches of the soil.—E. P. Powell, in Outing.

Origin of Chemistry.

Chemistry is a strictly modern science, dating back not much more than a century, but its theoretical problems were known throughout the Middle Ages. The nations of antiquity were already acquainted with them, and their origin is lost in the night of primitive and prehistoric time. The oldest technical treatises in Latin of the Middle Ages date back to the end of the eighth century, and dealt with the subject of dyeing. It was out of the old mediaeval alchemy, largely a useless affair, that our modern chemistry was born, with such men as Robert Boyle, Becker and Kunkled, 1600-1680.

Trying to Appear Innocent.

A professor from the University of Oxford, at a banquet one night, drank several glasses of port. The professor did not know this wine's extraordinary strength, and in all innocence he took too much. When he rose to leave the table, his legs, to his dismay, tottered and the room seemed to sway slightly. The horrified professor got to the parlor in safety. He sat down in the most distant corner. But soon his young hostess, leading a maid who carried her two beautiful twin babies, came to him for his approbation.

The professor sat up very erect. He gazed at the twins glassily. Then he articulated carefully, in a hoarse, thick voice:

"What a bonny little child."

Costly Wreck On Main Line

An unusually costly wreck occurred on the main line of the B. & O. east of Chillicothe a day or two ago, and fourteen freight cars were piled up along the roadside, blocking all traffic for many hours until three wrecking crews removed the broken cars and replaced the damaged track.

The wreck was due to a journal breaking while the train was going at a rapid rate of speed. Eight of the wrecked cars were loaded with fire brick, pig iron, corn meal and empty oil barrels.

CALENDAR FOR ORCHARDISTS.

Professor Hutt's Recommendation for Every Month of the Year.

January: Read best available literature on fruit growing. Attend Farmers' Institutes and work up co-operative organization. Make plans for new orchards. Order nursery stock.

February: Order or make up supply of boxes and barrels for next season's crop.

March: Prepare for spring work by getting in readiness plows, cultivators, spraying outfits and materials, pruning tools, etc. Get pruning done at earliest opportunity.

April: Plant out young orchards as soon as ground is ready. Look for grafting. Apply first spray of Bordeaux and Paris green before buds start. Plow under cover crop as soon as ground is dry. Apply wood ashes or other fertilizers necessary.

May: Complete any of the above operations not finished last month. Repeat spraying before blossoms open. Follow plowing by surface cultivation.

June: Spray immediately after blossoms fall. Apply carbolic wash to trunks or young trees to prevent borers laying eggs. Continue surface cultivation to conserve soil moisture.

July: Repeat spraying for the fourth or fifth time, as may be necessary. Discontinue cultivation towards end of the month, and sow cover crop as last cultivation. Thin fruit on young trees which may be overloaded.

August: Pick early apples intended for the market as soon as fully matured and well colored. Let hogs in the orchard occasionally to pick up early windfalls.

September: Begin harvesting autumn varieties as they mature. Get in touch with the leading apple markets if you have no co-operative organization to depend upon. Make an exhibit at your fall show and study varieties there exhibited.

October: Continue harvesting of the winter varieties, taking them in the order of their maturity.

November: Watch market reports closely and ship promptly if quotations warrant good prices. Pack and store apples for further shipment or winter use. Protect trunks of young trees against mice, rabbits or sunscald, as may be necessary upon approach of winter.

December: Continue apple shipments as may be necessary or advisable. Attend annual meetings of fruit-growers' associations and provincial fruit shows and keep in touch with progressive fruit growers. Balance accounts for the year and decide upon lines of improvement for the next.—H. L. Hutt, Experiment Farm, Toronto, Ontario.

Barley and Peas.

Barley and peas is a forage crop valuable for fall feeding. It has advantages for late forage not possessed by oats and peas. While oats are damaged by heavy frosts, barley will remain vigorous and continue to grow until early in November. This makes the barley and peas valuable for late soiling purposes or for pasturing. The barley and peas should be sown at the rate of 1 1/2 bushels of each per acre, and the crop may be sown as late as the first week in August. We have used this crop for soiling purposes as late as the middle of November. Some farmers have had poor success in growing the peas when sown in the summer. Where this is the case, the oats or the barley may be grown alone, and will produce good crops when seeded at the rate of 2 1/2 or three bushels per acre.

AN EXPLORER CORROBORATED

Missionary Believed the Captain's Story and Declared He was the Hero.

"Capt. Bushick was one of the most popular of the old-time commanders of the 'Big M' Line of steamships, sailing between New York and the far Southern ports," said the Southern merchant. "The captain's yarns were very interesting, too, though, to tell the truth, he sometimes strained the credulity of his listeners to the breaking point, but the old man had been telling these remarkable tales for so many years that he believed them implicitly himself.

"On the last night out of New York we were gathered in the smoking room as usual, and the old captain outdid himself in story-telling. Finally, he told us a most wonderful story of an experience he had had when he was a cabin boy on an Arctic whaler.

"It was to the effect that the ship he was on had passed close to an iceberg, and upon the lookout reporting a strange-looking animal upon it, the captain, thinking it might be a seal, had sent the mate in a small boat to investigate and capture it. When the mate landed on the iceberg he found the object which the lookout had seen was not a seal, but a man dressed in sealskins, almost frozen and in a famished condition.

"This man, when taken aboard ship and thawed out, had told a harrowing story, and had proved it, of how he was the only survivor of a sealing vessel which had been wrecked among the icebergs the previous year, and how he had been floating about on the iceberg ever since, with nothing to eat but frozen gull eggs and nothing to drink but melted ice. The old captain told the story in the best manner, elaborating all the little impossible details of the man's terrible suffering and privations, and expatiating upon the miraculousness of his preservation.

"Think of it, gentlemen," the old man said, in conclusion, "that man was nearly two years adrift on the iceberg, with nothing to eat but frozen eggs, nothing to drink but melted ice, nothing to wear but the sealskins he had saved when his ship went down. Think of it, gentlemen, and ponder on the mysterious ways of Providence."

"This story was the last straw that broke the camel's back; it was too much even for his friendly audience and when the captain finished there was a dead silence. This rather nettled the old man, and he said, rather angrily:

"Perhaps some of you gentlemen don't believe that story."

"I believe it, captain," spoke up an old missionary, who, according to his habit, had been sitting alone in a corner reading. "I believe the story, captain, and I not only believe it, but I know it to be true."

"How on earth do you know it to be true?" demanded the captain, dropping his cigar in his surprise.

"Because, captain," returned the solemn-looking old clergyman, "I was the man on the iceberg."

"The captain gasped, rose to his feet, made the missionary a low bow, and went out on deck. We didn't see him again that night."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

An American and Truthful.
The incumbent of an old church in Wales asked a party of Americans to visit his parochial school. After a recitation he invited them to question the scholars, and one of the party accepted the invitation. "Little boy," said he to a rosy-faced lad, "can you tell me who George Washington was?" "Iss, surr," was the smiling reply. "E was a 'Merican gen'ral." "Quite right. And can you tell me what George Washington was remarkable for?" "Iss, sur. 'E was remarkable 'cos 'e was a 'Merican an' told the trowth."

DOWAGER GOING OUT.

Title Gives Way to Christian Names in Social Circles.

The word "dowager" seems to be going quite out of fashion, and many who should so style themselves prefer to use instead their Christian names. Strictly speaking the mother of a married peer or baronet is the dowager, but it has become the custom when two ladies bear the same title to call the elder one by her Christian name, the distinction dowager being dropped altogether.

At court, however, all widows of peers and baronets are styled dowager when the peer or baronet regnant is married. The Christian name was adopted some years ago in cases where there were more than two ladies bearing the same title in order to make a distinction between the dowager and the wife of the holder of the title, and the innovation has become so popular that peeresses and baronets' wives who should style themselves dowager elect to be known by their Christian names. Thus the widow of the late Earl of Dudley is known as Georgiana Lady Dudley, but actually she is Dowager Lady Dudley.

The Cows of Muscat.

Muscat is famed as the hotbed of smugglers in the Persian Gulf, the nearby desert tribes being regularly supplied with arms despite the efforts of the British patriot. But to the writer the odd antics of the cows of Muscat seemed nothing short of freakish. They actually eat fish. No grass grows, so the wily Arab teaches his family cow to subsist on dates and dried fish. The milk tastes queer to a foreigner, which is probably why the Arab likes it. He also claims it is richer and makes more butter, but most ridiculous of all is the deception practiced on cows when the calves are weaned. A calfskin, or sometimes a goatskin, is stuffed with rags and tied not far from where the mother cow is anchored. This effigy of her late lamented offspring soothes her nerves and keeps her from "going dry," according to Arabic tradition.

Fish That Carry Candles.

Some of the fish found at a depth of about ten thousand feet by a German deep sea expedition resembled the fossil species in the rocks of the Mesozoic era, when the earth's atmosphere was dense with carbon. These fish in many cases had special means of collecting light. Some possessed enormous eyes occupying nearly the whole side of the head and some were supplied with telescopic organs. Others carried their light on their heads in a manner similar to that of the glow worm.—Montreal Standard.

Origin of "Three Balls" Sign.

The origin of the three balls in front of a pawnbroker's office, says the New York World, was a corporation of Italian merchants, known as "Lombards," who established loan offices in France and England during the thirteenth century. Their "arms," or emblems, (or those of the Medici family, which was foremost in the corporation), were three golden balls. The present "three ball" sign is supposed to be derived from that.

POKER CHIP KNIGHTS FACE GAMBLING CHARGE

Series of Raids Conducted By Police Saturday Night End in Arrest of More Men in Rooms Over Rhodes Pool Rooms--Arrest at Same Place Last Fall Recalled.

Following the persistent rumor that a number of erstwhile gambling houses were once more in active operation a "raid" was made about 7:30 Saturday night in which seven alleged gamblers, J. H. Rhoades, Lew Pickens, "Frank Jones", Leo Burke, Ed Eddings, Squire Jones and John Gillum, were caught, and Monday a joint affidavit was filed charging the men with playing poker, contrary to the laws of the state.

Chief McCoy made the first raid, and which, by the way was the only successful raid of the evening. Chief McCoy made his way to the upstairs rooms over the Rhoades pool room on Court street, meeting with some little opposition.

A buzzer was used effectively in warning the men upstairs that there was trouble coming, and when the chief reached the upstairs rooms there was a general scatterment, some of the men trying in vain to make their escape. A game table, cards and poker chips were in evidence. Chief McCoy took the names of those present and informed them they would probably be called for later. The proprietor of the place later appeared before Mayor Smith, it is said, and stated that he would be responsible for the appearance of the men if they were wanted. The men found in the room, it is said, claimed they were merely enjoying a game of "seven up".

Immediately after the raid Chief McCoy and Patrolman Bell visited the rooms over the Hooker, Campbell, Hillery, Tapsico and James pool rooms, but if games had been in progress at any of the places the birds had flown and no one was apprehended.

In some of the places game tables were found and chairs were stacked on top as an indication that there was "nothing doing". It is claimed that the tip beat the officers in the rounds to some of the places.

The raid made last Saturday night on the Rhoades pool room on Court street marks the second visit of the police to the place on a mission of the same purpose.

In the early morning hours of April 29th, last, the police raided the Rhodes pool room and arrested seven men and each one of them was charged with gambling and one in addition to a charge of gambling was compelled to face a charge of keeping a place where gambling was permitted or conducting a game of chance.

Each of the men arrested in the raid of April 29th, upon their pleas of guilty, were fined on May 2nd, 1912 by Mayor Smith $25.00 as announced by him, and ordered to pay the costs. One of the men—the one charged with conducting the game drew an extra $25 fine upon his plea of guilty, according to the statement of Mayor Smith.

The combined fines assessed amounted to $260.

On the 23rd day of August, 1912, Mayor Smith, under the law requiring an accounting every 30 days for money collected by him in cases brought under the state laws, filed his report with County Auditor Henkle. He has filed no statement since that time and that statement which was filed August 23rd, 1912, was for "Fines collected from January 1st, 1912, to April 30th, 1912, $95.85," covering a period of time before the fines against the seven men arrested in the raid on Rhoades pool room of April 29th, were assessed by him, he stating on May 2nd that he had that day assessed the fines.

When asked this morning by The Herald whether or not the fines assessed against those who plead guilty to a charge of gambling following the raid of April 29th had been paid, Mayor Smith stated that something like $84 or $85 had been paid; that there had been paid on each one of the fines assessed the sum of $5.00, only.

When asked as to the remainder due on the fines Mayor Smith was non-committal as to his purposes.

The fact that the same place was raided again last Saturday night makes the disposition of the cases growing out of the raid of April 29th, 1912, of public interest.

Farmers Pleased With the Rain

The rain Sunday night and Monday was welcomed by the farmers all over this part of the state, as the wheat was demanding more moisture and the fodder had long since become so dry that corn husking was made doubly disagreeable and tedious.

The beautiful fall has been unusually free from rain, and December opened up with a day that rivaled late September.

If good weather continues for ten days or two weeks a great many of the farmers will finish their corn husking.

Roof Burns From Cottage

AN OPTICAL ILLUSION.

Apparatus for Writing or Drawing from Reflection in Mirror.

Any one who has ever tried to perform any ordinary act by watching his hands in a mirror will appreciate the difficulty of the undertaking. The simplest thing, such as writing your own name, becomes a feat if you depend entirely on the reflection for guidance. A New York man has made use of this peculiarity to evolve an optical illusion apparatus with which a great deal of amusement may be had in an evening when games or puzzles are the order. This apparatus consists of a screen supported on four legs and with a sight-opening at one end. At this same end are grooves in which a mirror is held in an upright position, so as to reflect through the opening anything that is done beneath the screen. A piece of paper is placed beneath the screen and an effort is then made to write a sentence or draw a picture by watching the reflection of the hand through the sight-opening. If you think this is easy to do, just rig up one of these devices and try it. The apparatus can be made in a few minutes, and it will provide hours of real entertainment.

THE MOST DANGEROUS CAT.

The Black Panther of Africa is Equally Unapproachable and Treacherous.

Of all the big, dangerous cats, none is more unapproachable and more treacherous than the black panther. Hailing from the heart of the deepest African jungle, lithe and supple of body alert and nervous, this stealthy marauder exceeds in ferocity even a Bengal tiger. He is the only big feline that the lion trainer does not venture to train, and he is the only cat so absolutely distrustful that he shuns even the light of day. Often he will lie all day long in a dusky corner of his cage, his yellow slit eyes shifting and gleaming restlessly.

Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeals mingle with impatient snarls and impacts of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may lie eyeing his chunk of raw beef suspiciously and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor left to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast that frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a mate.—McClure's Magazine.

A Valuable Penny Book.

A blacksmith in Camdentown, England, noticing a good looking book on a second-hand bookstall priced at a penny, bought it. He took it home, and after attempting to read it threw it up on a shelf in disgust. One of his lodgers saw the book and, noticing the date, 1450, asked permission to show it to the British Museum authorities. The blacksmith was asked to call at the museum, and the secretary, to his surprise, asked him what he would take for the book.

The man was too confused to answer and still more so when the secretary asked him if he would consider an offer of £60. As he remained dumb, the secretary immediately raised the price to £90, which was at once accepted, though in great bewilderment. The book was the first ever printed by Gutenberg and was priceless to the Museum. Twice had it been lost and once stolen from its owner, after which its history was unknown till it was found on the bookstall by the blacksmith.—Clipping.

When It's Wise.

"Rita" was condemning in New York the frequency of divorce in America. "You Americans," she said, "don't seem to possess the secret—the secret, I mean, of matrimonial happiness. Perhaps you might take a lesson from a city clerk I heard of recently."

"A friend of his, after visiting him at his home, said:

"Excuse me, Will, but how do you manage, on your small salary, to have such well cooked and delicious meals?"

"The secret is simple," Will replied, "Every day I kiss the cook and do all I can to please her and make her happy."

"But doesn't your wife object?" the other asked.

"Dear, no! she's the cook," was the reply.—Washington Star.

Safe and Sane.

"Why do you call your new picture 'Dawn'?"

"Because," replied the young impressionist, "few people know what dawn looks like; hence they are likely to take my word for it."—Chicago Record-Herald.
